Tractor love leads to farm love

FILE PHOTO

CHESAIRE, Wis. - In a small town in the heart of Wisconsin's agricultural Corn Belt, a young boy is looking for a way to make a living. From the beginning of his childhood, he has been around the farm.

At a young age, he learned to work with a tractor. He was one of the first to learn to drive one. He was also one of the first to learn to fix one. He was also one of the first to learn to use a combine.

His father, who was a farmer, taught him everything he knew about farming. He was a good teacher and a good father. He was also a good friend.

Living with a tractor led to a love of farming. He was always around the tractor. He was always around the farm. He was always around the family.

The family farm is a small one. It is a family farm. It is a family farm. It is a family farm. It is a family farm. It is a family farm.

His father, who was a farmer, taught him everything he knew about farming. He was a good teacher and a good father. He was also a good friend.

For three young boys in Chesaire, Wis., the tractor is a family member. From left, U.S. McHenry, 5, and Finn, 11, they spend a lot of time in the yard learning to drive.

We Need Your Help!

Please take some time to think of young farmers (between ages of 21-40) that you would like to nominate for future WI OYF Awards. You know what we are Looking for. They can live anywhere in the Great state of Wisconsin.

Our nomination form and application are on the WI OYF website: www.wi-oyf.org

Also feel free to email these suggestions to our email:
